Auto Test Rules Modified; Lights, Brakes, Chief Test

Good Lights and Brakes Will Give Car a Safety Sticker

OVERLOOK FAULTS

State Police Modify Rules to Overcome Public Opposition

LITTLE ROCK—Drastic modifications of the requirements for obtaining a safety sticker for automobiles were announced Monday by Gray Albright, superintendent of the State Police, after the supreme court granted a writ of prohibition which in effect nullified a Union Chancery Court injunction restraining enforcement of the auto testing law.

The operators will carry out the inspections as in the past, punching the card to denote all defective safety features, and point them out to the car owners. These defects cover stop lights, windshield wipers, wheel alignment, broken windows or windshields and other gadgets, but will not prevent the car owner from getting a safety sticker.

The operators will carry out the inspections as in the past, punching the card to denote all defective safety features, and point them out to the car owners. These defects cover stop lights, windshield wipers, wheel alignment, broken windows or windshields and other gadgets, but will not prevent the car owner from getting a safety sticker.

Chief Albright directed that if headlights are in good working order and in proper adjustment and the brakes stop a car within the distance required by law, a safety sticker should be affixed. The letter permits the inspectors to make adjustment to headlights not in proper adjustment, and does away with the former requirement that the brakes be equalized.

In the past, a faulty windshield wiper, stop light, defective headlights, tail lights, unequalized brakes and various other items meant the car owner had to have the defects repaired and return to the station within five days or face a fine.

Chief Albright said he had contracted for a supply of stickers which will be mailed to testing station operators next week. These operators who have a supply of stickers left over, may carry on inspections.

He said as soon as the stickers reach their destination, inspection for the second period, which ends December 1, will begin. He instructed his force to order motorists who failed to comply with the law during the first inspection period to have their cars tested within five days.

Chief Albright said the modifications were a result of opposition to the law. He said he did not expect to remove criticism of the inspection program at believed that modification of the requirements would go a long way toward removing objections.

School Buses

Chief Albright mailed to his officers, set of regulations governing the design and operation of school buses as approved by the state Board of Education and state Highway Commission.

The rules hold school district officials and employees and every person under contract by a school district responsible for infractions, and provide for the removal in event of violations.

The rules require drivers of school buses to pass a rigid examination and be licensed; that only the licensed driver can occupy the driver's seat; that the buses be brought to a complete stop before taking on or discharging passengers, and to come to a complete stop within 50 feet, but not less than 10 feet, of railroad crossings; that the driver never leave his seat while the motor is running and on only after brakes have been set effectively; that all windows be closed; that children cannot hang their heads or arms from the bus; that the door be kept closed while the bus is in motion, and that signs indicating the vehicle as a school bus to be displayed only when actually used in transportation of children to and from school or school meetings.

Special equipment required on school buses include a hand ax, reversible "school bus" signs, rear view mirrors, windshield wipers, horns or other warning devices, equalized brakes, safety glass in windows and mudshields, clearance lights, side markers lamps, directional lamps and air reflectors.

The rules govern also the general instruction of the buses.

The story of Czechoslovakia is short but eventful. Here are the highlights:

The Hope Fire Department issued a warning Tuesday urging Hope residents to be cautious in burning trash at this season of the year.

Pauline Frederick Dies at Age of 55

Famed as Star of Stage and Silent Films for Generation

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.—(AP)—Pauline Frederick, 53, famous star of the stage and silent pictures, died at her home Monday, apparently from asthma and a heart attack. An inhalator squad worked for an hour in an effort to revive her.

Miss Frederick rose from the chorus ranks to become, in her heyday, America's most popular actress. She was stately in carriage, black-haired and talented.

She was born Pauline Libby in Boston, Mass., August 12, 1885. Her stage experience began in "Rogers Brothers in Harvard," an early extravaganza and her only venture into musical comedy. Among her outstanding stage dramas were:

"Joseph and His Brothers," "Innocent Samson" and "When Knights Were Bold."

On the screen she appeared in "Zaza," "Madame X," "La Tosca," "Fedora," "Bella Donna," "Mrs. Dane," "Slave of Vanity," "The Lure of Jade," "Paid in Full," "Resurrection" and "The Eternal City."

When talking pictures came in, the played in "On Trial," "Evidence," "The Sacred Flame," "Social Register" and "My Marriage."

Economic Problems of South Belong to the Entire Nation

Oppressive Tariff and Rail Policies Dictated by U. S.

Though Poor, South Has Largest Population Increase

NO FINAL ANSWER

"Roosevelt Has Dug Up More Snakes Than He Can Kill"

This is the second of three articles on the south and its problems by Jonathan Daniels, editor of the Raleigh, N. C. News and Observer and author of the current best seller "A Southerner Discovers the South."

By JONATHAN DANIELS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

A year ago when I was traveling about the south, trying as a southerner to discover my own land, I came upon an old gentleman in southeastern Arkansas. He was one of the squararchy of that region, the landlord-merchant-banker-farmer of his world on the dusty road.

A book agent, young and brash, had preceded me to the porch of the big commissary where this gentleman sat in his rocking chair and had undertaken to sell him a set of books on scientific agriculture. The old man thumbed through the books.

"Now, son," he said, "I don't want 'em."

But the salesman persisted. "You ought to buy these books, sir. If you had these books you could farm twice as well as you do."

The old man settled himself more comfortably in his chair. "Hell, son," he said, "I don't farm half as well as I know how now."

Poverty Preferred

And by the same token, the report of the National Emergency Council to the President on the economic conditions of the south was not necessary to make the nation aware that the south was not an Eden without a snake.

Congressmen and presidents, senators and businessmen have been aware of that for half a century—longer, indeed, than that. The south was poor and men in the other sections were willing that it be kept poor. The south was poor and men in the other sections were willing that it be kept poor.

The report lists the symptoms of the bright upon a land which should be, but it not, a garden. And beneath the symptoms the causes are arrayed with considerable diagnostic precision.

And causes, like conditions, are familiar; misuse of land and water, high birthrates and the young migrating from hunger, and the cash crop farming in an agricultural region which never could accumulate enough capital and credit at home, and the absentee ownership which grew naturally (as well as sometimes bawlingly, sometimes helpfully) where native capital was scant and all credit was high. And the tariff. And freight rates.

The facts of cause and symptom in the south are too vast to be denied: sixty-one per cent of all the nation's badly eroded land is in the southern states. But the population of the south is growing more rapidly by natural increase than that of any other region.

A Land and Its People

This poor, crowded land and its people lie behind every aspect of the south. Behind the southern schools which must educate the most children with the least wealth, behind the twins of malnutrition and disease, behind the two and a half million below standard houses, behind the half and more of all southern mill work-

These charts show one reason why President Roosevelt has referred to the south as the nation's No. 1 economic problem. Note how the incomes of both white and Negro groups are lower in the south than in the north.

The south was poor and men in other sections were willing that it be kept poor. This picture of bleak destitution was taken in the mountain country of Virginia. Jonathan Daniels writes that the poor crowded land and its people lie behind every aspect of the south.

Rotenberry Case Decision Oct. 17

Supreme Court Refuses to Grant Rotenberry an Amendment

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court in an extraordinary session Tuesday ordered advance for submission October 16 of a taxpayer's suit seeking to bar from the November general election ballot the Rotenberry old-age pension act.

The court overruled A. L. Rotenberry's motion to amend the petition placing it on the ballot, contending the decision upholding the measure's ballot title last spring precluded raising new issues at this time.

The court refused to appoint a special master to hear testimony, and ordered evidence submitted by depositions, with briefs direct to the court. A final decision is expected October 17.

Another Spain?

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Some Washington analysts are wondering if Czechoslovakia may not become another Spain. That, they say, is a definite possibility, and one that may depend upon decisions to be reached within the next few days.

Developments of the Spanish parallel rests, the arguments runs, on two "ifs" and Adolf Hitler's choice of the method to be used in obtaining Sudeten Czechoslovakia.

The "ifs" are:

If the Czechs decide they will fight, rather than surrender a portion of their territory to Germany, as proposed by Britain and France.

If Great Britain and France then refuse to give military assistance to Czechoslovakia.

Given these developments, it is believed the next step would be a renewal of the Sudeten civil war which was crushed under the weight of martial law last week. This time Hitler would be actively behind it, with men, planes and guns, but following the modern technique, without a declaration of war on Czechoslovakia.

ist a German attempt to seize the Sudeten regions Soviet Russia would support her.

Raid From German Side

FRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—(AP)—Three attacks on Czechoslovak frontier customs houses by men said to have crossed the border from Germany with machine-guns, grenades and pistols were reported by the Czech government Tuesday.

The attacks occurred at Klein-Aupa, where two were wounded; at Ebersdorf, where six Czechs and several invaders were hurt; and at Neusorce, where Czech officials beat off the attack.

Prague authorities said there was no doubt that the attackers, dressed as civilians, came from Germany.

Trouble on German Border

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—The German official news agency Tuesday reported a steady series of Czechoslovak frontier clashes between Sudeten Germans and Czechoslovak detachments.

Seventeen German frontier guards were said to have been wounded. All the incidents were reported to have occurred in the mountains on the Silesian side of the German-Czech frontier.

German strategy seemed to be to let Sudeten deserters and Heilen "Free Corps" fight it out with the Czechoslovak frontier forces without involving the regular German armies.

Czechs Say "No"

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—(AP)—A source often regarded as a spokesman for the Czechoslovak Foreign Office said Tuesday that the Franco-British proposals for splitting the nation's territory to appease Adolf Hitler were unacceptable to the Prague government.

The authoritative newspaper, Lidova Noviny, whose diplomatic editor, Hubert Ripka, often reflects the Foreign Office viewpoint declared: "If the guarantees of borders made us 20 years ago are invaded today, what assurance have we that promises made now will be kept in the future?"

The newspaper's comment came as other sources, usually having access to government information, indicated the government would consider the London proposal but only as a basis for further negotiation.

Methodist Revival Will Begin Sunday

The Rev. James W. Workman to Conduct Two-Week Campaign

A revival meeting will begin at First Methodist church Sunday morning, September 25. The meeting will be of two weeks' duration and will extend through October 9.

The Rev. James W. Workman, pastor of Central Methodist church, Fayetteville, Ark., will be the preacher for the meeting. Dr. Workman is well known in Hope. He delivered the commencement address for the 1938 Hope High School senior class, and made a deep impression on his hearers with his very forceful and inspiring message. He has spoken in Hope on other occasions.

Dr. Workman is a most interesting speaker. He will bring strong and inspiring messages on the call of Christ to people of these chaotic times. He will appeal to all ages. He is in demand as a speaker not only for religious gatherings, but also for civic and professional groups. He is widely known over the Southwest for his speaking ability.

In addition to serving as pastor of one of the larger Arkansas Methodist churches, he is also director of the Wesley Foundation at the University of Arkansas. This work brings him in contact with hundreds of young men and women every year. He knows youth, and will bring a very strong appeal to the young people of Hope, as well as to all age groups.

Rev. E. H. Martin, of Jackson, Tenn., will lead the singing for the revival. Rev. Martin has been in several Arkansas revivals the past few months. Among these have been meetings at Gurdin, Nashville, Malvern and Prescott. He is an able leader and will contribute a great deal in song. The people will sing under his leadership. Services will be held twice daily at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. According to the pastor, Rev. Fred R. Harrison. The general public is extended a cordial invitation to attend these services.

If Czechs Fight

to maintain their republic intact in the face of the drive of totalitarian powers and to solve the differences with their minorities which they claim always have been well-treated—Czechs saw in the French and British proposals a sounding board for additional parleys in the future.

France Not Pressing Prague
While the government stationed police throughout Prague and took extraordinary measures to prevent unfriendly popular demonstrations against the proposed surrender to Germany of Sudeten German areas containing much of the nation's vital defense fortifications and a huge percentage of her industrial resources, a glimmer of hope lifted up the Czechs who earlier had almost despaired of outside aid.

After a nearly 12-hour session of the cabinet ministers, it was indicated in sources close to the government that the assistance of the Czech's French allies had not entirely disappeared in the excitement of British Prime Minister Chamberlain's efforts to produce a settlement.

These sources cited two new developments:
1. A majority of the cabinet stood firmly against Hitler's purported suggestion that all cities which gave the Sudeten German party, now outlawed, a 70 per cent or more plurality in the last municipal elections be handed over automatically to the Reich.
2. The French cabinet was said here to be exercising no pressure on Czechoslovakia to accept the Franco-British program.

French Play Ball
Semi-official information reaching here from Paris said the French were caught between these alternatives: Either to agree at least to formulation of Hitler's suggestions, or accept the facts that the British could not be considered as potential allies on the side of France and Czechoslovakia if war comes.

In this situation, it was said the French premier, Eduard Daladier, had replied by taking the surrender plan back to Paris for discussion, but he did not promise Britain he would attempt to force its acceptance upon Czechoslovakia.

With this understanding the Czechoslovak cabinet maintained a strong stand against the proposal with all elements of the government united. The agrarian representatives were reported to be leading opposition to acceptance and were even urging passage of additional orders to strengthen the already stringent measures to maintain peace.

Criticism in France
PARIS, France—Unanimity of the French government did not extend everywhere. In spite of the "peace at any price" campaign waged in the French press, the French-British agreement produced ominous rumblings in discontent in the corridors of the Chamber of Deputies. Comment from deputies of the extreme Right as well as the Left were often explosive, sprinkled with threats of bitter attacks on the government when Parliament reconvenes. These deputies contended that the accord heaped shame upon France and had weakened her influence in Europe.

THEATERS

At the New
When a young West Point cadet makes the All-American football team is sought by every professional ball club in the country, and is the idol of millions—he is liable to let it go to his head.

That's what happens to Richard Cromwell in the Republic Picture "Come on, Leathernecks!" which opens Tuesday at the New Theater.

Cromwell, as Jimmy Butler, comes out of the academy on the crest of the wave, but none of his fans have a greater estimation of Jimmy than Mr. Butler himself. His pal, Hy, played by Bruce MacFarlane, persuades Jimmy to join the Marines, rather than play professional football. Edward Brophy in the role of Max, a football promoter, follows Jimmy and Hy all the way to the west coast, hoping to change Butler's mind.

Jimmy's father, Colonel Butler, played by Robert Warwick, is stationed in the Philippine Islands. Through various tricks, Hy manages to get Jimmy on board a ship bound for the islands. There they meet a young plantation owner, Valerie, portrayed by Marsha Hunt. From here on there is plenty of action, including scraps with gun smugglers, a terrific fight with Baron, the manager of Valerie's estate, who is in league with the smugglers, and many chases with Max, the football promoter, after them.

Jimmy's opinion of himself is still as high as ever until Valerie goes to work on him. In a smashing climax, the young man's ego takes a definite dive, and he decides that he belongs to the Marines.

The entire cast is excellent. Cromwell is at his best, as is Marsha Hunt. Edward Brophy carries the comedy at a swift pace, and Robert Warwick gets the most out of his role as the father. Leon Ames turns in a fine piece of acting as the villainous estate manager, while Bruce MacFarlane, in his first screen role, offers plenty of promise.

Oppressive Tariff

ers who earn less than 37.5 cents an hour although in the rest of the country less than 10 per cent work at such low rates.

The crowded land lies behind the child labor (fortunately decreased), the long working hours for women, and the little buying power which makes the south a poor market for the many things (made everywhere in America) which the south needs.

So far as legislation goes, so far as formal acts in solution are concerned, I think the President has dug up more snakes than he can kill.

Despite the trade treaties of his secretary of state, there seems little prospect that the tariff will be substantially altered to serve an agricultural south. Indeed, above its big sprawling agriculture many of the new industrialists of Dixie are most articulate for tariff protection for themselves.

Escape from freight rate discrimination must come slowly—though it seems to be ahead—before commission nad court. No President or Congress can retroactively repeal the fully grown inequality which grew while the south was held deliberately at disadvantage.

The monopolies are mature. The tariffs are fixed. The freight rate discriminations will not quickly disappear. And wage-and-hour and similar legislation sometimes seem by itself dangerous as an independent item when it would be virtuous as a part of a full program for equality.

National Problem
Poverty and sweaty wages were never anywhere good. If the south by law is to be required to pay decent wages (as I think every section should be), it should in equity also be qualified to pay by the removal of inequality.

The problem of the south is not a southern problem. It is the problem of the possibility of federal union. Grant's troops did not solve it. Solution awaits upon the possibility of equality in happiness and happiness in equality of the regions within it.

And no one President—or a dozen of them—armed with the best intentions in the world can quickly demonstrate such a possibility. Economic Problem No. 1 is a problem for the people of the south—and of the rest of the country—for us all.

NEXT: The two alternative solutions to the south's problem

Questions, Answer On Employment

Q. When were states given an opportunity to establish the Employment Service on a nation-wide basis?

A. On June 6, 1933, the Wagner-Peyser Act was passed. This act created a bureau in the Department of Labor known as the United States Employment Service. In states where funds were not available for a State Employment Service, a temporary agency was created known as the National Reemployment Service. This agency was in operation until funds could be made available by the states.

Q. When was the Arkansas State Employment Service established?

A. The Arkansas State Employment Service was established in the State Department of Labor under Act 157 of 1937 known as the Arkansas Unemployment Compensation Act but did not affiliate with the United States Employment Service until January 1938.

STAMP NEWS

PHILATELY acquired a rare batch of covers from Howard Hughes' round-the-world flight. Officially, Mr. Hughes carried no covers, turned down more than 1500 requests by collectors; for these postal specimens. But it is now revealed that he did carry several hundred covers "to provide souvenirs for those persons without whose aid and co-operation the flight would have been impossible."

Eventually some of these exclusive covers may get into the philatelic market and when they do they should prove relatively rare.

The U. S. Postoffice Department is planning to initiate a new experimental air mail service to rural points in which specially-equipped planes will pick up and deliver mail while in flight. Invitations for bids on four proposed routes have already been sent to airlines, will be opened Sept. 15. Such plan if adopted widely would revolutionize air mail service.

Marking the 125th anniversary of Commodore Perry's victory on Lake Erie, a cachet printed in color will be mailed from the Put-in-Bay, Ohio, postoffice on Sept. 10. Send covers not later than Sept. 4 to H. D. Hubbard, 119 S. 39th street, Philadelphia. Forwarding postage is not required.

The American Philatelic Congress will meet at Hartford, Conn., Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11 and 12, Eugene Klein, president, has announced.

Special stamps under consideration by the U. S. Postoffice Department are commemoratives for the New York World's Fair and one honoring Francis Scott Key, who wrote the "Star Spangled Banner." (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Bobcats Prepare for Conference Game Here Friday Night

Norman Green Is Back in Uniform

Bobcat Tackle Returns to Squad Following Illness

With the return of Norman "Tarzan" Green to the lineup, the Hope High School Bobcats went to work in earnest Tuesday for their opening conference game of the season here Friday night with the Clarksville Panthers.

Green, counted on as a regular tackle, has been ill the past few days with malaria. Illness caused him to be left at home last week when the Bobcats went to Haynesville for their opening game of the season.

Green, towers above six feet and weighs 190 pounds. He is playing his first year of football.

Team to Be in Shape
Barring injuries and sickness the balance of this week, the Bobcats will be in good condition for their first home game. The squad came out of the Haynesville battle with a minimum of injuries and sore muscles.

The squad is likely to see some rough work Tuesday and Wednesday. Coaches Hammons and Brasher said. The Bobcat mentors, although pleased with the result of the Haynesville score, said that errors cropped out in the first game that must be corrected.

Clarksville Tough
The Clarksville team, headed by a veteran coach, rolled over Ozark last Friday by a score of 44 to 0 which indicates they have a formidable crew.

Little information was available Tuesday in regard to the Panthers. Weights and the probable starting lineup is expected to be received in Hope late Tuesday or Wednesday morning.

Urges Co-operation
Coach Hammons Tuesday asked the co-operation of the public in regard to parking their automobiles at the stadium this season.

The National Guards will be on duty again this season and have been given authority to direct traffic and parking.

The guards are on duty for the protection of the public and fans are urged to obey their directions at the stadium grounds. Cars will be parked in long straight lines where they will be protected from thieves who might attempt to ransack them.

Parking space has been enlarged, the ground being cleared on the north side of the stadium. Traffic will have two outlets this year in leaving the stadium. Drivers may return to town on South Main or South Walnut street.

You Shouldn't Snooze On a Parking Lot

WASHINGTON—(AP)—It cost Daniel Perry, 32-year-old negro, 15 stitches in the head to snatch a nap on a parking lot.

While Perry was snoozing, a driver backed his truck into the lot, over Perry's head and went on his way without knowing he had interrupted a nap. Perry is recovering in a hospital.

Throws Ringers

Herbert Trinkle, about to throw a ringer, won the national Amateur Athletic Union horseshoe singles championship from 15 contestants at New Springville, Staten Island. The 25-year-old Trinkle returned to Madison county, Ind., not only with the singles title but also sharing the doubles crown with his partner, Walter Lane. Trinkle scored 451 points in singles. He made 335 ringers and 105 double ringers. His percentage was 72.1.

It was one way of having the Browns photographed and to get someone to come out and see them play. Power Is Better Distributed as Midwest Giants Battle for Honors

Ohio State and Notre Dame Are Hit Hard by Graduation—Gophers Get Top Billing in Big Ten Conference Scramble

Third in a series of sectional football roundups.

By JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer

This is not the year of Minnesota, nor Notre Dame, nor Ohio State, in the Midwest.

This is the year that the gridiron scene on the nation's most vicious battlefield will show deepest, because the power is better balanced, and the talent better distributed.

That is not to say that there are no outstanding teams in the section, because the Gophers, the Irish and the Buckeyes, along with Northwestern, are geared plenty high.

But the others are coming up after years of feebleness. Michigan will be stronger, Wisconsin is on the upgrade, and Illinois is returning to life in the Big Ten, while over in the Big Six, Kansas is set to make things very uncomfortable for Nebraska.

Not by force of habit, but because of material on hand, Minnesota must be given the inside track in the Western Conference. Bernie Bierman lost two corking ends in Ray King and Dwight Reed, a mighty guard in Bob Dick and Andy Uramick and Viv Spadacini from his backfield. But the Gophers have plenty left.

Stars Still Shining
From tackle to tackle the Vikings will be rugged and rather plentiful in reserve strength. Capt. Francis Tweedell is a potential All-American at guard, while in the backfield will be the brilliant Harold Van Every, Wilbur Moore, Martin Christiansen and Larry Buhler, a couple of 200-pound fullbacks. Buhler may be shifted to a blocking quarterback post, if George Frost fails to make the grade.

Many point to Ohio State as the team to beat, but closer examination shows the Buckeyes—on paper at least—actually will be a little weaker than last year. Graduation losses included Jim McDonald, Dick Nordi and Nick Wasky among the better backfielders, and the entire line with the exception of tackles Alex Schoenbaum and Karl Kaplanoff.

Mike Kabaek and Johnny Rabb will carry the big load in the backfield this season, with aid from a terrific 200-pound sophomore named Don Scott. What the Bucks really need is linemen, and they need them desperately.

With 14 out of 20 returning lettermen listed as linemen, Northwestern would have one of the strongest forward walls in the country, while Bernie Jefferson, the colored speedster, Jack Ryan and Jay Laskay will pace the ball carriers. Tab the Wildcats as

Zebra Team Holds Secret Practice

Special Train to Bring Big Blytheville Delegation to Game

PINE BLUFF—Coaches Dunaway and Terry had their Pine Bluff High School Zebras working behind closed gates Monday, and will continue this practice during the week in preparation for their game Friday night with the Blytheville Chicks.

Dunaway said Monday night passing is a thing of the past insofar as this year is concerned, due primarily to the loss of McGibbony. The Zebras tried 18 passes Friday night against the McGeehe Owls and did not complete one.

Usually the Zebras work in the open until one week before the clash with the Little Rock Tigers and Dunaway's departure from this practice is the first since he has been here.

The Blytheville team will arrive here Thursday and will work out at Jordan stadium that night. A special train from Blytheville with 300 fans is expected Friday afternoon.

The PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

NEW YORK—Call out the Phi Beta Kappa boys. There's going to be a lot of thinking done on the college gridirons this fall. And a lot of severe headaches on the coaches' benches.

Take that on the word of Lou Little, Columbia University's professor of applied gridiron science who is drilling his students these days at Baker Field for their first resumption on October 1 in the Yale Bowl in the presence of rugged and unsympathetic Elis and some 60,000 spectators. The game is the first of the season for both.

"We've all been boasting for a long time that football was a game which demanded brain, as well as brawn, but we didn't know the half of it until last year when this craze for shifting line defenses swept the country," says Little.

This sport is getting to be a fast game of chess. We used to be able to scout a defense and know pretty much what to expect. Now we still scout them, but we've learned to expect anything and everything. College football today is certainly no place for the athlete who isn't alert and quick-thinking.

"On one play, the quarterback may be facing a six-man line, on the next a five, on the third a seven. Or he may line up, see a five-man line and, by the time the signal is called, it may be a six instead of a five.

"The result is that the quarterback has no monopoly on generalship and brains in this game any more. You know, they used to say that all a line-man needed was a good strong back and a good pair of arms and legs. That's not true any more. The line-man, as well as the back, must be prepared to change blocking assignments constantly, at an instant's notice."

Five-Man Line Not New
There's nothing new about the five-man line. Little pointed out, but before last season it was used generally as a defense against a strong forward passing attack and at the expense of strength against the running game.

In 1931, when Barry Wood was throwing the pigskin for Harvard a University of Texas team invaded Cambridge. Wood dropped back and started to throw passes.

Texas went into a five-man line, dropping an end off the scrimmage line into the secondary, whereupon smart Mr. Wood, who was a real Phi Beta Kappa, began running off the Texas flanks and the final score was Harvard 35, Texas 7.

Today, however, coaches are using the five-man line as a defense against the ground game as well as against passing and, primarily, as a defense stratagem designed to confuse the offensive team in its blocking assignments.

The result is a new element of gambling strategy in the game, new thrills for spectators, and new gray hairs for coaches.

Little is not exactly effervescent Peter Pan for optimism, but does allow himself to break into a smile occasionally.

The reason is a backfield corps, headed by the brilliant passing and running Sid Luckman, that appears much stronger than the Lion ensemble of a year ago.

Calls Luckman Greatest
Columbia expects the Brooklyn boy to rank among the season's national top-notchers.

Aiding and abetting Luckman in his forward passing will be Johnny Siegal, a veteran 190-pound end who was a ball-hawk on the end of Luckman's tosses last season when Little was quoted as saying that Luckman was the greatest passer he had ever seen, either in college or professional football.

Luckman, playing his final season, will get plenty of chance to show against rugged competition. On the first five Saturdays of the season, Columbia meets Yale, Army, Colgate, Pennsylvania, and Cornell.

"It's a tough schedule," asserts Little, "especially with big games coming so early. But I'm convinced that that's the trend of modern football."

"Boys get more fun out of a real contest than from a game in which they're running against the 'south wind' and piling up 50 points against no opposition.

"That kind of game makes a boy careless—and then he's more likely than otherwise to be hurt."

The silkworm possesses a pair of silk glands, each measuring five times the full length of the body.

First Fatality

Princeton football hopes received a big setback for 1938 when Bill Lynch, Tiger fullback from Birmingham, Mich., died from a heart attack at the conclusion of a light practice session. Lynch, 22, who also was a star track man, having toured Europe with an American A. A. U. squad this summer, was the first collegiate grid fatality of the season.

Porkers to Take to Air in Opener

Kay Eakin Expected to Do Most of Passing Against Oklahoma

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. —(AP)—The 1938 University of Arkansas Razorbacks may pick up Saturday where last year's "passingest" team in the nation "left off."

Coach Fred C. Thompson indicated that if weather conditions were favorable he would depend a great deal upon an aerial attack against the Oklahoma A. & M. Aggies in the season opener.

Coaches George Cole and Eugene Lambert who scouted the Farmers reported the Oklahoma's had a big line and three hard-running and versatile backs in Pete Rivers, Henry Brotherton and Bill Cowling.

Although its early, the boys certainly look good defensively, asserted Thompson after watching his varsity pile up a 28-0 score against the freshman squad.

The air-minded Arkansas mentor said Kay Eakin, expected to carry the brunt of the passing this year, and junior Mitchell had shown good form tossing the ball to receivers, among them sticky-fingered Joe Scalet, a blocking back. Mitchell and Scalet are sophomores.

Thomson reported three big sophomore ends, Howard Hickey, Maurice Britt and John Friberger, who have had trouble holding passes, had shown improvement and turned in completions against the freshmen.

With the exception of Gloyd Lyon at quarter, the Razorbacks will face the Oklahoma's with the same squad that rode over the freshmen. Lyon will replace Neil Martin who will be first quarterback reserve while Ralph Atwood is recovering from a shoulder injury.

Britt and Hickey will hold down the end posts, Mays and Stallings will fill the tackles with Thorpe and Simington at guards and Woodell at center. In the backfield with Lyon will be halfbacks Eakin and Scalet and fullback Mosley.

On the other hand, the Arkansas team will have to contend with the Oklahoma's defense, which is expected to be one of the strongest in the section.

Arkadelphia College football fans from all over Arkansas are expected here Friday afternoon when the Tigers open the 1938 season playing the Oklahoma Baptist University Bisons. Word has got out via the "grapevine" that Bill Walton's team probably will be one of the strongest in all Ouachita history.

Return of 15 lettermen and a raft of good reserves assures Walton of an experienced eleven that also contains much offensive dynamite that was shown intermittently last season.

The Oklahoma team that tied Ouachita 14 to 14 here in 1936 and defeated Ouachita 13 to 7 last season will be strong again this season if the consistency shown by the Shawnee Baptists for many years holds true.

Coach Walton is undecided about some of his starters, but the team that takes the field Friday afternoon will be selected from the following men:

In the line, Basil Myrick, J. T. Berry, Bob Young, and Joe Creecy, for ends; Owen Matlock, M. J. Paine, Lloyd Moore, Norman Forsee and Hartford Hardin, for tackles; Thomas Chinn, Joe Langston, Travis Paine, Joe Chinn and James Craig, guards; Jimmie Kincannon, Omar Lundgren and J. W. Thornton, centers; Frank Reed, Robert Smith, Jake Baxter, Virgil Benson, Thomas Mann, Frank Tilley, Leo Westbrook, Lowell Nelson and Jack McHaney, backs.

It's Just Not Healthy to Chew Neighbor's Gum

CORDOVA, Alaska. —(AP)—A campaign to discourage Alaskan Eskimos from borrowing their neighbors' chewing gum has been started by Dr. H. E. Kleinschmidt, education director for the National Tuberculosis association.

Chewing gum, like blubber, becomes community property in some native districts and everyone takes a turn at it, Dr. Kleinschmidt explained.

He attributed rapid spread of tuberculosis among the natives to this and similar customs.

Bruner Clinches Last-Half Title

Teams Resume Play Tuesday Night for Championship, Gold Trophy

Roy Taylor, fireball king of the Hope Softball League, hurled the Bruner-Ivory team to a double victory Monday night over the Williams Lumber company team.

The double victory clinched the last-half championship for the Bruner team. The scores were 12 to 3, and 5 to 4.

In performing the iron-man role, Taylor was the "big show" of the night. He set the Williams team down with six singles in the opening game and also was just as good in the second game, limiting the lumber team to a half dozen blows.

Leading Slugger
Taylor led the batting attack in the opening game, hammering out a triple, double and single in four trips to the plate.

After a scoreless first inning, the Bruner exploded five runs across the plate in the second inning and continued to add to their lead as the game progressed.

The Williams team appeared ragged on the defensive, committing a total of seven errors in the first game. The score by innings:

First Game
Bruner-Ivory 0 5 1 4 1 0—12
Williams 0 0 1 0 1 1—3
Taylor and Russell; Sommerville, Pike and Brown.

Second Game
Williams 2 0 0 1 1 0—4
Bruner-Ivory 0 2 0 0 3 x—5
Pike and Sommerville; Taylor and Russell.

To Play Tuesday
The two teams will resume play Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. This series, two out of three, will be for the championship of the Hope Softball League and also for the Saenger theater's gold trophy.

There is a possibility that two games will be played Tuesday night, depending upon the outcome of the first game and on weather conditions.

There will be no admission to the softball field, however, persons who wish to see the game will be charged at the entrance gate to Fair Park where the Hempstead County Fair is in progress.

The entrance fee, 10 and 25 cents, will enable spectators to see the fair and also the softball game.

Roy Taylor will start on the pitching mound for Bruner with Pike the likely choice for Williams team.

Farmers Play Wednesday
A team composed of farmers, managed by Carroll Schooley, will oppose a team of merchants at the softball field Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The merchants' team is managed by Clyde Coffee.

New York Goes to Polls on O'Connor

Powerful Chairman of the House Rules Committee Faces F. D. R.

By the Associated Press
The success or failure of Roosevelt efforts to defeat Chairman John J. O'Connor, house rules committee chairman, was being determined Tuesday by the voters of New York's East Side. O'Connor sought both the Democratic and Republican nominations for his ninth term. James H. Fay, Roosevelt-supported, was his Democratic opponent; and Allen Dulles was against him on the Republican ticket.

Wisconsin and New Jersey are choosing senatorial nominees, and Massachusetts and Wisconsin are nominating for governor.

O'Connor is Up
By the Associated Press
The Democrats of a section of New York city will decide Tuesday the outcome of the last of President Roosevelt's announced efforts to rid congress of Democrats whom he calls conservatives. They will choose between Representative John J. O'Connor, whom Mr. Roosevelt has denounced as "one of the most effective obstructionists" in the house, and James H. Fay, New Dealer favored by the chief executive.

As chairman of the house rules committee, Representative O'Connor of New York holds a key position in the process of legislation. Practically all bills must be approved by his committee before they can come up for discussion on the floor of the house.

White House displeasure with O'Connor is said commonly to have had its start at the time the public utility holding company bill and its so-called "death sentence" provision were before congress. O'Connor opposed the government reorganization bill, a measure upon which the president has insisted.

In addition to seeking Democratic renomination, O'Connor entered himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination. In that contest, he is opposed by Allen Dulles.

Modern Daffodils Are Favorites

A Modern Daffodil

Daffodils have become favorite material for those fortunate to possess a bit of woodland. They flourish in shaded situations, coming into bloom under early spring sun, before the trees have leaved out, and then the shade protecting them so that they ripen their foliage and mature their bulbs without being prematurely ripened by hot summer sun.

Another most effective practice is to tuck in bulbs in vacant spots all over the garden between other perennials and under the edges of shrubbery so that in their season the daffodils give character to the entire garden, and then their leaves, which are unsightly and floppy during their maturing period, are concealed by the foliage of the perennials which mount above them and provide shade for the daffodils. For this purpose the older and cheaper daffodils and narcissi are ideal and furnish as fine an effect as can be obtained by the larger flowered and much more expensive modern hybrids.

The poetic types are favored for woodland planting in combination with the native bluebell or mertensia, the

Hurricane Veers Away From Coast

Misses Florida, and Is Skirting South Carolina Coast

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — (AP) — A Weather Bureau order for storm warnings along the North Carolina coast Tuesday said a tropical hurricane of "great intensity" would pass east of Cape Hatteras Tuesday night. The storm, which Monday was menacing south Florida, is now moving north to northward at 17 miles an hour. This movement lessened the danger to Florida.

Some of them are delightfully fragrant and are prized for this feature as well as their beauty. The narcissus family offers the first long-stemmed cutting material of spring. They are ideal cut flowers, as is shown by the quantities of daffodils forced and sold by florists each winter. The trumpet varieties are easily grown as house plants, provided only that the atmosphere is not too dry, in which case buds often blast.

Food Products Storage House

Storage of home-produced products is a difficult problem for many Arkansas farm families. Basement storage, food pantries in the house, or underground cellars or caves are used when available. However, where these facilities are not available, a separate food storage house is a satisfactory solution. In Arkansas, the above-ground storehouse, if built of heavy materials and well insulated, may be used throughout the year. The chimney is used principally as a ventilator, although a small amount of heat may be needed in extremely cold weather. Native rock, logs, or double walls with sawdust, shavings, or packed straw are recommended. Some form of insulation under the roof is desirable. The two rooms in this plan provide for storage of fruit, vegetables, or bulk supplies in one room and canned goods on shelves in the other. This plan is one of a series of more than 100 plans of farm buildings and equipment prepared by the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture for farm people. A plan service handbook and drawings may be obtained from your county agent and home demonstration agent.
